Chains.

This style is one of the most effective and popular scrapers in use. Many large ice companies who have had extended experience use the Boston for all depths of snow and planer chips.

Made in a most thorough manner with matched lumber, oak throughout, heavily ironed, and painted.

The handles are long enough to prevent the operator from stooping.

Three-eighth-inch chains are preferred to ropes. The loose rings to which they are fastened slip along the draw irons in dumping and the draft helps to reverse the scraper. The scraper handles when inverted rest upon the iron cross-rod between the chains.
